Hampton Furniture of Dignity and Comfort

THE cheery and spacious Country House Living Room with its lofty casemented windows and coffered ceiling serves, just as did the stately Hall of the old Elizabethan Manor House, as a general family meeting place.

At the Hampton Shops, then, may be found such Reproductions of old English Furniture as will give a captivating air of bygone times to the modern room. The bulbous legged Jacobean Table of oak, for instance, or the cozy Settee with its comfortably resilient upholstery and cushions of the softest down—the Muniment chest with its panels of Gothic carving and strap-work hinges of wrought iron, or the Writing Chair with its curving back and arms of closely interwoven cane-work.
